In the States of Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas long grain varieties usually comprise over 56 percent of the rice acreage. In these four states more than one-half of the acreage of long grain varieties is in Bluebonnet. In the Southern portion of the United States the long grains are more popular while in the Northern states the medium grain varieties are preferred. In Cuba and China long grain varieties are used more extensively; in Puerto Rico and Japan preference is for short and medium grains.

Bluebonnet 50 is a strain of Bluebonnet selected by H. M. Beachell at the Rice Experiment Station, Beaumont, Texas.

The Registered Seed Rice offered by the Delta & Pine Land Company is only two years removed from our head row block which is the only source of absolutely pure seed rice. It has been carefully handled in the increase stage to maintain this quality. We are confident it is the finest seed rice obtainable anywhere.

Our Certified Seed Rice is the result of one-variety production and processing in compliance with the strict regulations of the Mississippi Seed Improvement Association. For the past several years the program followed at Scott, Mississippi, has resulted in high yielding seed rice free of red rice and noxious weeds.
